HEINIE WAGNER IS PAGE WILL VISIT IN GOOD CONDITION

Captain of World's Champions Newly Appointed Ambassador to Sailing Under Cover, Waiting for Season.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 6.—"This talk about Helinic Wagner being in bad it. e physically is all rot," remarked to sire Billy Evans, who recently returned from a stay at Hot Springs. "I was much surprised at reading such reports in the Eastern papers. Wagner's failure to play in the Pittsburgh series was no doubt the cause for such a wild rumor. His failure to play, however, was simply due to his desire to nurse his arm along slowly.

Trinity College, Durham, N. C., April 6.—The fact that Walter H. Page has accepted the post of United States ambassador to the court of St. James, does not mean that he will not come here to deliver the series of lectures which he has agreed to deliver at Trinity College. The announcement of the engagement of Mr. Page to deliver the series of lectures.

or would think of my whip at the moment; my only thought would be to successfully complete the play. If such a play came up in a game between our own players, I would never take such a chance.

"I have a strong arm, but it must be nursed along carefully. Such an effort as I have illustrated might put me out of the running. I want to keep on playing for a number of years, consequently I don't take any chances in the spring. When the seaton opens you will find me at my regular place in the line-up, with an arm that will be strong enough to withstand the most violent exertion."

Wagner is wise.

That the fact had almost been lost sight of.

He has been a frequent lecturer on the conditions of rural life in the South, and is an authority on the awakening in the most striking improvements in the South at the present time. Mr. Page is just now more than ever before the public eye because of the important position he has just accepted, and his ovent of State-wide interest.

series of lectures here was made last week from the college office just one day before the press dispatches carried the news that he had been offered and had accepted the post in London, and for some time it was feared that he would find it impossible to come. This fear has now blown over, and every indication is that the noted statesman will be heard here within the next few weeks.

The general subject of the lectures that will be delivered here is the improvement of conditions of rural life.

Pittsburgh games, put the question to him squarely.

"I haven't played in the games with Pittsburgh simply because I did not care to take any chances," replied Wagner. "When the series was arranged it was intended merely as practice, but when teams of rival leagues are playing the players forget it is only practice, and strive their hardest for victory.

"If a Pittsburgh player hit to me in a pinch, and the game hinged on my getting him at first, I would cut that ball lose regardless of my arm. Relying on the President's indorse-ment of the bill, Underwood and his fellow tariff-makers have no doubt of the cancus' approval. After its intro-duction the bill will be referred back to Mr. Underwood's committee, and the first official consideration of it will be begun. By accepting the President's agreement with the sugar men, or, rather, the agreement he has given them the option of making, the House them the option of making, the House leaders have shifted much of the responsibility to his shoulders. Having made up their minds that whether they liked it or not, the President is going to have a great deal to do with commercial lawmaking, the leaders are careful to place plenty of pillows under their windows on which to alight if they find it convenient to jump.

When the bill comes to a vote, special rules will govern its consideration. To this end the House caucus will discuss Tuesday the methods of limiting debate and restricting amendments to various paragraphs.
